

Sketch a thought

key

other information

To differentiate the delivery of this task you could ask pupils to complete a picture or think about a sequence of pictures which could be produced as a group.

instructions

The aim of this exercise is for pupils to take a different approach to a plenary by drawing what they think they have learnt rather than writing about it.

Give your pupils a piece of paper and a pencil.

If you think it may be required show the pupils an example of how to complete the task.

Pupils work individually by drawing their plenary picture.

They will then work in pairs to discuss each other's drawings.

Working as a class pupils show their drawings and the class has to work them out.

Be aware that this is an activity designed to focus on the pupils and not teacher talk. Be concise in your explanation.

The table below explains what each icon used on the resources key represents. The key is broken down into 4 categories:
